Travel Services International Introduces mytravelco.com(SM)

DELRAY BEACH, Fla., Jan. 7 /PRNewswire/ -- Travel Services International (Nasdaq: TRVL) announced today the launch of its new vacation Internet web site: <http://www.mytravelco.com> . The company has utilized a variety of technological innovations to reengineer its former site and create an exceptional source of comprehensive travel information for leisure travelers.

mytravelco.com is Travel Services International's third generation internet site. Its predecessor, travelco.com was already viewed very favorably by consumers, who typically would spend well over 20 minutes per session on the site, as compared to an industry average of seven minutes. Building off this success, Travel Services International has gone to the next level in creating a website that is even more user-friendly and provides travelers with a complete source of travel information, advice, assistance and the ability to book their trip.

The new site incorporates the World Travel Guide with 20,000 new pages of destination information, enabling consumers to explore all facets of a prospective locale, including the history, climate, events, culture, activities, etc., of virtually every country, major city and classical or environmental site in the world. The choice of destination drives most consumer leisure travel decisions. The content available at mytravelco.com will be a valuable resource, assisting customers at every step in formulating and booking their travel plans.

mytravelco.com introduces the "Live Online Cruise Agent" which allows the customer to engage in a live chat session, or to request through the Internet a phone call from the agent, either immediately, or at the customer's convenience. John Balson, President of Travel Services International states, "We believe the combination of easy to use information delivered via the internet and access on the website to our extensive group of highly skilled travel counselors provides the customer a superior level of quality service immediately online."

Balson adds, "A key goal of this site is to establish a rich community experience for customers." In addition to the "Live Online Cruise Agent," mytravelco.com offers visitors the opportunity to post questions, comments and personal reviews about their trips with the Message Board and Chat features. Travelers can even post pictures of their vacations in the Online Scrapbook.

Twice a week, mytravelco.com will also host live chat sessions with travel experts, who will contribute a wide range of travel information and personal experience. Chat room guests will include leisure travel company executives, destination experts and travel writers. "We went to the consumer to find out exactly what they wanted," says Balson, "and we believe that we are the first to respond with such an extensive and complete range of travel information and service on the net."

One of the most exciting features of mytravelco.com is the new 360 degree bamboo(TM) Virtual Tours of today's most popular cruise ships. Travel Services International contracted the services of bamboo.com (Nasdaq: BAMB) a leading Internet imaging service and content provider, to film 360-degree images of over 75 cruise ships. In as little as 20 seconds, a customer can download a tour of a ship and then at their leisure, select their cabin, view the dining rooms, preview the menu and check out the pool decks, as well as all other areas of the ship. Balson adds, "These Virtual Ship Tours offer a unique perspective that you simply cannot get from a brochure photo alone." Mapping and locator services of MapQuest.com's have also been incorporated in the site to provide maps and direction functionality to all U.S. cruise ship terminals. Balson notes, "You'd be surprised how many people call every day just for directions to the pier. We've tried to anticipate every question in the buying process and answer it."

The most significant enhancement to the new website is its integration with Travel Services International's Cruise Control(SM) Reservation and Customer Management System. Developed over the past two years, this application was built for call center agents and the Internet. By connecting this proprietary application to the website, visitors to mytravelco.com now have access to over 22,000 cruise departures on over 40 cruise lines and 100 ships. For the first time, a travel website will offer live, real-time cruise pricing and availability on the world's largest cruise lines. "We're very excited about leveraging the investment we've made in our Cruise Control technology and expanding that to benefit the consumer directly," states Travel Services International Chairman, Joseph V. Vittoria.

The site will continually be updated to provide the most up-to-date information, and is expected to expand this Spring to include automated direct cruise booking, tour packages and lodging options.

Travel Services International is a leading specialized distributor of travel products including cruise vacations, vacation packages, domestic and international airline tickets and European auto rentals, and is a leading provider of travel services, such as electronic hotel reservation services, specialized hotel programs and services and incentive travel programs. The Company provides its services to both travel agents and travelers. By offering specialized expertise in obtaining a range of options from multiple travel providers, Travel Services International can offer the customer the best choice and value in vacation selection.

More information about the Company may be obtained through the web site at <http://www.mytravelco.com>.
